Stand at the crossroads of faith and enlightenment as you explore the walled port town of Lagos, once the center of trade between Moorish Portugal and Africa. Visit the 11th-century Royal Alcázar of Seville and traverse the streets of Tangier, a gateway to Africa that has seen many ruling empires over the millennia. Discover the wonder of the Alhambra palace and Generalife gardens in Granada and bask in sun-kissed Valencia, birthplace of paella. Your epic adventure concludes with an excursion to Barcelona to see Gaudí's world-famous Basilica de la Sagrada Família, an architectural masterpiece that remains unfinished to this day.

Retrace Ancient Trade Routes

Discover the architectural treasures and interconnected history of Portugal, Morocco and Spain, revealed through their fortified medieval towns and coastal cities. The cross-continental collaboration and joint influences of Greco-Roman, Judeo-Christian and Moorish civilizations ushered in a new era of advances in mathematics, science, medicine, horticulture and philosophy — creating the catalyst for global trade from the 15th through 18th centuries. Ships sailing from these shores to the New World brought back riches to the region, generating great wealth among this unique mélange of cultures and sparking a veritable renaissance in art and architecture. From the coasts of Portugal and Spain to the ancient maritime port of Tangier, Morocco, experience the allure of these seaside gems as you retrace voyages in the wake of mariners past.

Global Cuisine

Morocco and the coasts of Portugal and Spain have a rich culinary history that has changed the face of global cuisine, most remarkably with dishes featuring bold flavors and spices. One of the most famous foods hailing primarily from Valencia, Spain, is paella — a flavorful rice dish traditionally made with olive oil, chicken broth, vegetables and a variety of meats and seafood. The dish got its name from the traditional wide, shallow pan used to cook it, with paella literally meaning “frying pan” in Valencian Spanish. The signature yellow color of the dish traditionally comes from saffron, but turmeric and calendula can be used as substitutes. Paella had humble beginnings, originally being considered a lunchtime meal for farmers and made with whatever was on hand at that time. Another popular dish native to the region is couscous, which has roots in Morocco and is prepared from ground wheat rolled into pellets. Experience these savory cultural staples firsthand on our tour with a cooking demonstration and lunch in Tangier, Morocco, and an optional trip to the market in Valencia, followed by a paella cooking class with a local chef.
